Report To The Chairman, Subcommittee On Legislation And National Security,
Committee On Government Operations
House of Representatives

Use Of Government Motor Vehicles For The Transportation Of Government Officials And
The Relatives Of Government Officials

GAO asked federal agencies for information on the use of government motor vehicles, during the period January to June 1985, to transport (1) officials between their residences and their places of employment, and (2) relatives of officials between various locations.

Of the 128 officials GAO was told were provided transportation between their residences and places of employment, GAO believes that 79 received unauthorized transportation. Of the 17 relatives of officials GAO was told were provided transportation between various locations, GAO believes that 7 received unauthorized transportation. Five received transportation that sometimes was unauthorized.

The Honorable Jack Brooks
Chairman, Subcommittee on Legislation and National Security
Committee on Government Operations
House of Representatives

Dear Mr. Chairman:

Your April 2, 1985, letter asked us to determine the use of government motor vehicles to transport government officials between their residences and their places of employment. Subsequently, your office asked us to also review the use of government vehicles to transport relatives of government officials between any locations, while either accompanied or not accompanied by the government officials. Further, we were asked to limit our review to transportation provided to officials and their relatives within the continental United States since January 1, 1985, and to report whether, in our opinion, the officials and relatives of officials were authorized to receive the transportation they were provided.

As agreed with your office, we developed information on the use of government vehicles by federal officials and their relatives by requesting information from the Executive Office of the President, the 13 cabinet-level departments, the departments' 178 subordinate organizations, and 60 independent executive branch offices, boards, commissions, agencies, etc. Of the total number of executive branch activities from whom we requested information, all but the Executive Office of the President responded concerning the use of government motor vehicles by their officials and relatives of officials. We examined records and otherwise verified only the information received from the Commodity Futures Trading Commission, the General Services Administration, and the Office of Personnel Management.

The agencies' responses indicated that 128 officials were provided transportation between their residences and their places of employment. In addition, on some occasions, 17 relatives of officials were provided transportation between various locations. Details on the 128 officials and the 17 relatives are contained in the schedules included as appendices I and II.

The basic authority for the use of government motor vehicles to provide transportation for an official purpose is contained in 31 U.S.C. 1344. It states:

"(a) Except as specifically provided by law, an appropriation may be expended to maintain, operate, and repair passenger motor vehicles or aircraft of the United States Government that are used only for an official purpose. An official purpose does not include transporting officers or employees of the Government between their domiciles and places of employment except--

(1) medical officers on out-patient medical service; and

(2) officers or employees performing field work requiring transportation between their domiciles and places of employment when the transportation is approved by the head of the agency.

(b) This section does not apply to a motor vehicle or aircraft for the official use of--

(1) the President;

(2) the heads of executive departments listed in section 101 of title 5; or

(3) principal diplomatic and consular officials."

In addition, there are other authorizations applicable to the use of government motor vehicles related to specific agencies or specific agency officials. The authority for transportation of officials and relatives of officials, as cited in the agencies' responses, is shown in the schedules in appendix II.

On the basis of our review of the information contained in the responses from the government agencies, departments, and subordinate organizations, we believe that 79 officials have received transportation in government motor vehicles between their residences and places of employment that they were not authorized to receive. This represents about 62 percent of the officials that were receiving transportation, according to the information we were provided. In addition, we believe that 7 of the 17 relatives receiving transportation in government motor vehicles were not authorized to receive it. Also, five relatives received transportation in government motor vehicles that part of the time was authorized and part of the time was not authorized.

Schedules showing the agencies in which officials are receiving government transportation between their residences and places of employment, the number of such officials involved, the relatives of officials in these agencies receiving government transportation between various locations, and our opinion on whether such transportation was authorized are contained in the schedules included as appendices I and II.

The conclusions in appendix II regarding the authority, or lack of authority, for the cited transportation represent the preliminary views of our Office of General Counsel based on its review of the information provided by the agencies in response to our requests for information. Those conclusions should not be treated as formal decisions of the Comptroller General. Substantial further legal and factual review, including allowing each official the opportunity to provide any additional justification the official deems appropriate, would be necessary in each case before formal decisions could be made. As agreed with your office, we did not obtain comments from agency officials on our preliminary views.

As arranged with your office, unless you publicly announce its contents earlier, we plan no further distribution of this report until 30 days from the date of the report. At that time, we will send copies to interested parties and make copies available to others upon request.

We trust this information satisfies your request.

Sincerely yours,

William J. Anderson
Director

Director Federal Bureau of Investigation	Daily	The Director of the FBI has received numerous threats against his life which place him in virtually continuous imminent danger. These threats necessitate 24 hour, seven day a week personal security protection for the Director. The home-to-work transportation received by the Director is incidental to the security detail that accompanies and protects the Director. We believe that in this context home-to-work transportation was contemplated by Comptroller General Decision B-210555.	Authorized. Assistant Director, Office of Protective Research, Secret Service	Daily	"The Office of Protective Research provides intelligence and technical support for the protective mission. Though the Assistant Director normally works regular business hours, he is required to immediately respond to incidents whenever they occur and he is responsible for the monitoring and control of all Secret Service investigations involving threats against the President and others protected by the Secret Service. During an emergency, close coordination by this individual with the Office of Protective Operations is required to facilitate effective interpretation and use of intelligence. Liaison by this official with officials of other state and local law enforcement and intelligence agencies and with private industry to keep abreast of technical development on a 24-hour basis necessitates the use of an official vehicle between home and and work." FOOTNOTES TO APPENDIX II a/Spouses of government employees may be transported in government vehicles only when: (1) the spouse is accompanying an official whose transportation is itself authorized to or from his home and an official function and his or her transportation does not result in additional expense to the government, (2) the spouse of an official entitled to routine home-to-work transportation is being transported to or from an official or quasi-official function and the spouse's presence at the function is in the government's interest and circumstances make it awkward or impossible for the official to accompany the spouse enroute, or (3) government transportation is necessary for security reasons in accordance with the criteria of footnote a. See B-210555.9, June 28, 1984. Spouses are not themselves considered representatives of the United States, except overseas, and cannot "represent" the Government official at functions he or she does not attend.

b/The provision of home-to-work transportation to government employees is permissible for security reasons when: (1) there is a clear and present danger of violent criminal activity directed at the employee in question, (2) there is a showing that the provision of transportation in a Government car would provide protection not otherwise available, and (3) the decision to provide home-to-work transportation is made with circumspection and is not based on speculative or remote fears of criminal activity. See 54 Comptroller General 855 (1975); B-210555.3, February 7, 1984.

c/Home-to-work transportation pursuant to the "field work" exception of 31 U.S.C. § 1344(a) is permissible when the employee's work includes a large proportion of time "on the road" away from an office or other headquarters, travelling from place to place; e.g., investigators, collectors, etc. See B-212512, March 16, 1984.

d/The transportation of employees in travel status is governed by the Federal Travel Regulations and is not restricted by 31 U.S.C. § 1344. See B-210555.3, February 7, 1984; B-210555.5, December 8, 1983.

e/Persons "acting" in the position of an official entitled to routine home-to-work transportation are not themselves entitled to home-to-work transportation for that reason. The privilege of home-to-work transportation is applicable only to persons officially occupying the positions excepted in 31 U.S.C. § 1344(b).

f/The fact that government home-to-work transportation may result in increased efficiency or convenience is not sufficient to overcome the plain statutory prohibition of 31 U.S.C. § 1344. In 62 Comptroller General 440, 447 we held that, "unless certain narrow exceptions apply, agencies may not properly exercise administrative discretion to provide home-to-work transportation for their officers and employees." See also B-210555.3, February 7, 1984.
